Young men and self-esteem

Following the success of previous training events around the theme of young people and self-esteem, the Health Promotion Agency for Northern Ireland (HPA) has organised a re-run of this series of seminars which will be delivered between autumn 2004 and spring 2005. The seminars will be delivered with input from the Design for Living programme, comprising Action Mental Health, Youth Council for Northern Ireland and the HPA, and will be facilitated by key speakers who have vast expertise in the field of mental health, self-esteem and young people. This is the last in a series of three seminars held which focused on self-esteem and the theme for this seminar is young men and self-esteem.

Potential participants

This event will be of interest to anyone from the community, voluntary or statutory sectors, who works with children and young people in a range of settings. It will be of particular benefit to youth and community workers, social workers, teachers, health promotion workers, primary care workers and others in the allied health professions who have an interest in the promotion of positive mental health, in particular those who work with young men.

Date of seminar

23 February 2005

Venue

Glenavna House Hotel, Newtownabbey

Facilitator

Trefor Lloyd, from the London-based Working with Men project, has been involved in developing work with men for over 18 years. He co-founded the B Team in 1985 to produce useful resources and publications for those developing work with men and the Working with Men project to provide training, consultancy and a subscription journal to the same professionals. He has written and spoken in Britain and abroad on issues affecting men but especially on the development of practice. Trefor will share his expertise and experience in the field of research and practical work in the promotion and development of self-esteem and young men.
